Dear Hutchinson,

Dear Friends,

I have always loved Hutchinson. I love both the space and the people that fill the space—but mostly the people. I grew up here, and I watched from an early age as the people surrounding me—my family and friends—worked tirelessly to make Hutchinson the BEST place in which to live, work, and raise a family.

We moved to Hutchinson 6 years ago after 35 years away. We could have lived anywhere in western Kansas or Colorado, but we chose Hutchinson. It's my hometown, filled with family and friends who are still committed to making Hutchinson exceptional. I love being a part of that!

This ongoing commitment is why I believe in Hutchinson Community Foundation. Its founders were visionary, its goals are relevant, and its impact is far-reaching. The work is important, and the people behind the work love Hutchinson, too. They work tirelessly, every day, to make Reno County the best place in Kansas.

The Foundation is strong because of its donors—those who demonstrate their love for Hutchinson and Reno County through their gifts, their work, and their hope for the ongoing prosperity of this place we call home.

I hope you enjoy this report. It is filled with stories of generosity, vision, and compassion—love letters to my hometown.

Sincerely,

Susan S. Buttram

Endowed Love is Forever Love

Until 2010, fundraising was about survival for the Cancer Council of Reno County. Solely focused on meeting the annual needs of patients fighting cancer, the Council's leadership thought putting money away in an endowed fund seemed out of the question. With inspiration from donors, board members, and Hutchinson Community Foundation, the Cancer Council began making a conscious effort to create a fund, with hopes of a more sustainable future.

"We had to expand our thinking from helping cancer patients today, to helping cancer patients forever," said Sandy Woodson, Executive Director of CCRC.

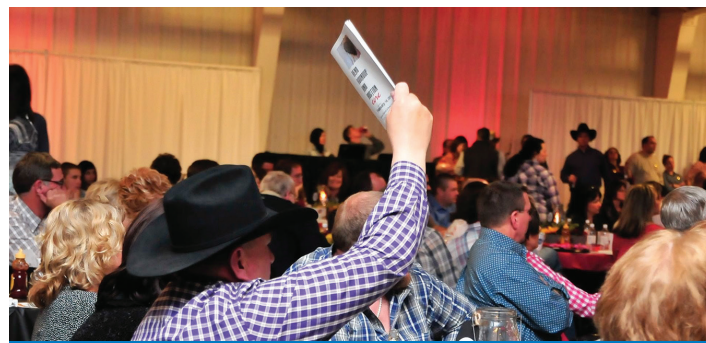

Endowed funds serve as an organization's long-term savings account, where the principal remains untouched, and the organization only spends the interest into perpetuity. CCRC works to build the fund through their annual Round-Up fundraiser, the Community Foundation's Match Day events, and through special gifts. The board even committed $10,000 from operating funds to the endowment in honor of CCRC's first director, Mary Hall.

The current Cancer Council of Reno County's board of directors continues to set their sites on the long-term financial health of the organization by focusing on endowment building.

"Holding an endowed fund at the Foundation provides the service and transparency donors want. Working with the Community Foundation gives our organization credibility and allows people to feel comfortable donating," said Bob Capps, CCRC Board President.

Dear Hutchinson Community Foundation,
A phone call from a generous donor 7 years ago and the dedication of the CCRC Board, resulted in the CCRC Endowed Fund at the Hutchinson Community Foundation.
Your guidance and the opportunities you've provided through Match Days and trainings have helped us grow our endowed funds. This includes our annual matching grant challenge at the Roundup each year. Our hope is to help cancer patients in Reno County long into the future.
As one patient said, "You have been here for me from the beginning of my diagnosis and have walked with me ever since." Thank you, Hutchinson Community Foundation, for walking with us.
Sandy Woodson, Executive Director

Love for Hometown

Though siblings Mike Kimbell and Kay Almanza live away from Hutchinson, they have a great desire to see our community thrive. Together with their spouses, they opened Donor Advised Funds at Hutchinson Community Foundation, so they can continue to support this community and causes that are important to them.

Mike and Kay grew up in Hutchinson and inherited a love for this community from their parents, Charlie and Sharon Kimbell. It's a love that shines through in their childhood memories of having a perfect view of parades from their father's office on Main Street, where they would always find the refrigerator stocked with "the best orange pop." And it's clear as they recall cherished Hutch High friendships, time with family at "Charlie's Pond" in the county, drinking malts at the Pegues lunch counter, and shopping at the Emporium downtown.

Charlie and Sharon, who were founders of Hutchinson Community Foundation, also inspired their children's philanthropic hearts. When the time came to decide how Mike and Kay might best achieve their own families' philanthropic goals, they listened to their mother's voice of experience.

"Working with the Community Foundation has been great," Sharon said. "I knew my kids felt a connection to their hometown, so it made sense to encourage them to work with the Foundation, too."

Mike, Kay, and their families opened Donor Advised Funds, and by doing so they have made a heart felt commitment to the hometown they love.

"Our parents gave us such a strong sense of home, and that's part of why we're passionate about making a difference on a local level. Now that mostly means Lawrence and Kansas City, but we've also found ways to give back to Hutchinson, where our roots are," Kay said.

Charlie and Sharon have been longtime Donor Advised Fund holders and community philanthropists. As a mom and teacher, Sharon has always loved helping children learn and thrive, so it's not surprising that she supports early childhood initiatives, along with Grace Episcopal Church, through her Endowed Legacy Fund.

The Kimbell and Almanza families have chosen to honor the community that helped shape them by making gifts through the Hutchinson Community Foundation. The impact of their philanthropic spirits will be felt in Hutchinson for generations to come.

"MY PARENTS CHOSE HUTCHINSON TO RAISE US BECAUSE IT MEANT SO MUCH TO THEM. WE'VE BEEN BLESSED BY THE OPPORTUNITIES PROVIDED FOR US BY THE COMMUNITY."

- Mike Kimbell

Sharon and the late Charlie Kimbell are pictured enjoying dinner with their son, Mike Kimbell and his wife, Michelle, and their daughter, Kay Almanza and her husband, Dan.

Sharon and the late Charlie Kimbell are pictured with their grandchildren, Ellen and Fischer Almanza (back row) and Jackson Kimbell (front row). Charlie was well-known for his love of fun and finger-wagging.

In honor of our Legacy Society members, Hutchinson Community Foundation sponsored new signage at The Hutchinson Zoo. We invite you to stop by and enjoy this great local amenity.

As we look to the future, we're grateful to the members of our Legacy Society—a group of people who care deeply about Hutchinson and Reno County and want to make sure that our children, grandchildren, and generations to come have an ever-improving quality of life. Join this esteemed group by donating $10,000 or more to a new or established endowed fund or committing to an end-of-life gift.

Dear Buhler,

The Community Foundation is proud to support Buhler's efforts to encourage healthy living. The Buhler Wellness Center's new expanded facility, which opened in early June, features a room for classes, more equipment, and a small indoor pool.

"We hope to be the place for people to come for education on fitness, nutrition, and community building," said Candace Davidson, Recreation and Wellness Director for the City of Buhler.

The previous Wellness Center was located in the community room of Buhler's city offices and had 100 members. Davidson expects to see an increase in membership with the visibility and additional features of the new facility.

Though the City of Buhler passed a bond issue to cover the cost of the space, Buhler Community Foundation secured grant partnerships to provide funding for some equipment.

"The Wellness Center represents exactly what we want for Buhler—health and community. Buhler Community Foundation is pleased to play a part in this exciting new facility," said Lindsey Fields, Buhler Community Foundation's Coordinator.

Thank You, Buhler, for providing space for my grandsons to swim and fish and play ball and ride their bikes without fear. Our community is full of neighbors to visit with, who provide meals for families, share skills in gardening and lawn care, and celebrate events and good news. It is so special to gather with friends at the restaurant to exchange tips and news and events of the week. Now we can boast of our new ball park and Wellness Center, because of the generosity of our voters who made all the improvements possible. I love living in a town that cares for its folks, has pride in its services and appearances, protects both its children and senior citizens, and is progressive in providing safety, security and entertainment. Buhler, Kansas, represents the very good life, and I am grateful to share this space with family and friends. Shari McCabe

FOUNDATION

Dear Young Philanthropists,

Hutchinson Community Foundation's Youth Philanthropy Council helped grow Maren Berblinger's love for community service. Berblinger, who recently finished her sophomore year at K-State, is even pursuing a minor in nonprofit leadership. She continues to give time and talents to community betterment projects by volunteering with Big Help in the Little Apple, coordinating community service events for her sorority, and working with Habitat for Humanity.

Hutchinson Community Foundation,
Thank you so much for investing in the youth of Reno County through the Youth Philanthropy Council program. During my time on the council, I learned so much about inclusion, authenticity, and sustainability because of the decision making process we went through in order to fund youth related projects in our community. YPC was a very meaningful program to me because it helped me realize my passion for community development work. I am still using and expanding on many of the skills I gained during my time in YPC.
Sincerely, Maren Berblinger

Members of Youth Philanthropy Council participate in teambuilding activities at Dillon Nature Center.

For nearly 15 years, Hutchinson Community Foundation's Youth Philanthropy Council has groomed Reno County's next generation of philanthropists.

Each year, a group of high school students transforms into a close-knit council as they learn about Reno County's strengths and challenges and build a common vision for Reno County. The Council's work culminates in a grant process that awards $3,000 to youth-serving organizations.

"I'm always impressed by how seriously YPC members take the responsibility of awarding grants. They know their decisions touch many lives and impact the life of an organization," said Aubrey Abbott Patterson, Community Foundation President & CEO.

YPC grants are made possible through the Richard W. Dillon Memorial Fund for Youth Philanthropy, which the Dillon family established to honor Dick Dillon and his extensive philanthropic work in our community.

"SOMETIMES THE VOICES OF YOUTH CAN BE DIMINISHED, BUT THROUGH YOUTH PHILANTHROPY COUNCIL, WE HAVE A CHANCE TO SPEAK UP AND MAKE A DIFFERENCE."

Love Through Placemaking

Since the first splash park opened in Avenue A Park, Rhonda Hiebert has been a champion for one in Rice Park in northwest Hutchinson—near the Montessori Learning Center, where she serves as director.

In 2015, she brought this idea to Hutchinson Community Foundation’s Envision Hutch Unconference, and several other community members joined the effort to move the cause forward. Their first step was a family carnival in Rice Park, where they asked families to sign a petition voicing support of the idea.

With the idea for a new splash pad gaining momentum, Hutchinson Community Foundation helped gather interested parties and soon had a financial commitment from the City, as well as donations from community members, including Mert Sellers, a long-time advocate for free family activities in Hutchinson.

“At the ribbon cutting ceremony, a young girl thanked me for the splash pad, saying she was excited to be able to ride her bike and play on a hot day,” said Aubrey Abbott Patterson, Foundation President & CEO. “That’s why we do what we do.”

“I’M REALLY HAPPY TO SUPPORT THIS PROJECT AND SEE IT COME TOGETHER. NOW FAMILIES

IN ALL AREAS OF TOWN HAVE EASY ACCESS TO A FREE AND FUN ACTIVITY ON HOT DAYS.” - Mert Sellers

WHAT IS PLACEMAKING?

Placemaking inspires people to work together to reimagine public spaces as the heart of a community. This work seeks to strengthen the connection between the people in a community and the spaces and places they share.

Donors, city officials, Community Foundation representatives, and students of the Montessori Learning Center celebrate the grand opening of the Rice Park splash pad on May 26.

ENERGY AROUND EARLY CHILDHOOD

Brad and Valerie Pryor first realized the need for more high-quality, affordable childcare in Reno County when they were in need of it themselves. As they began looking at childcare options for their young children, they experienced frustration with wait lists and knew they couldn't be alone.

"We say we want young families to live here, but we were lacking some of the services they need," said Brad.

Looking for solutions, the Pryors gathered key community stakeholders—Hutchinson Community Foundation, the Hutchinson/Reno County Chamber of Commerce, and the United Way of Reno County—for a conversation around early childhood programs in Reno County.

"Even people without kids or grandkids in the area got involved because they love Hutchinson and felt it was the right thing to do," said Valerie.

They began connecting others who were looking to make progress, and as a result, a new childcare facility opened in early June at Our Redeemer Lutheran Church.

"The progress made is great, but we need to keep the ball rolling. I want all kids to start kindergarten from the same starting block, and that requires quality early childhood programming," said Brad.

RELIEF FOR WILDFIRE VICTIMS

When wildfires erupted in Reno County in early March, Lucas Soltow's home was in the evacuation zone. He wanted information, and he saw a communications gap. Roads were closed, evacuation areas were changing, and he knew people would need information to feel reassured during a frightening time.

Soltow formed a Facebook group, which gave those in the area a common place to share information related to the fires. Many in the group were asking how they could help fire victims, and through a partnership with Reno County Voluntary Organizations Active in Disaster (VOAD), he spearheaded donations to a relief fund at Hutchinson Community Foundation.

Through Soltow's promotional and collaborative efforts, the Disaster Recovery Fund generated nearly $16,000, not including the other ways people could give through the United Way of Reno County and 211.

"The outpouring of concern and interest in helping others was amazing. Now more people know about VOAD and might be inclined to donate to the organization's fund in times of disaster," said Soltow.

HEALTHY FOOD AND COMMUNITY

The Arlington Farm and Art Market was formed to bring fresh produce, baked goods, arts & crafts, live music, and a children's story time to Arlington. Kelsi Depew, the market's coordinator, said she was delighted when she realized it also gave the people of Arlington a place to build community.

"We've made a choice to create culture rather than just consume culture," said Depew. "Bringing people from the area together here in Arlington has been so meaningful. My kids have a sense of family right here in our community."

Those interested in shopping at the market or just soaking up its vibe can join in the fun every Thursday evening from 4:00-7:00 p.m., June through September.

Depew is active in Heal Reno County, serving on the Food Policy Council and Healthy Foods Work Group. Her work in Arlington has also been awarded two grants from the Community Foundation: one for improved access to the community center and the other to fund a community clean-up project.

FAITH THROUGH PHILANTHROPY

Looking for a way to show love and support for their community, Phil Auxier and the church he pastors, Crestview Bible Church, used their location along the trail system in Northwest Hutchinson to their advantage.

After a discussion with the Vitality Team of Reno County, the idea for a bicycle repair station was born. The church began collaborating with area agencies on the project. The City of Hutchinson's Parks Department offered expertise, and the Friends of the Trail Fund became a funding partner. The church also contributed money from the memorial fund of church member and longtime Parks Department employee, David Gaeddert.

Phase one of the project involved installing a bench and bicycle repair equipment. Phase two, made possible by a Make It Greater Grant from Hutchinson Community Foundation, will add a drinking fountain at the site.

Crestview Bible Church celebrates with all the partners who came together to help with the project, and the church will continue to provide maintenance and upkeep for the station.

Dear Reno County,

It is our privilege to serve the place we call home and the people we call neighbors and friends.

We will continue our work in the areas where we and our board of directors believe we can make the biggest impact. Our initiatives aren't just boxes we check ... they are our passions. Together with our donors and nonprofit partners, we're constantly looking for ways to make life even better in Reno County—the place we love.

Sincerely,
